A Third-Grade Book Report, Finished Fifty Years Later

By Keith Parsons, CWNE #3 · 2026-06-25 · originally on LinkedIn

When I was 7 in third grade, living in Oslo Norway at the time, I wrote a 'book report' on Lake Titicaca in Peru... and thought "How exotic" - and wanted to see the world even more.

In the last two weeks I've been able to visit Lake Titicaca in person to see their floating islands and ride in their reed boats, along with visiting Machu Picchu, Cuzco, Lima, and even live for awhile on the Amazon river taking jungle canopy tours, fishing and eating Piraña, and holding a baby Sloth we found alone in a nearby tree.

I do love seeing the world and traveling to visit and experience different cultures. (And of course evaluating hospitality Wi-Fi along the way...)

Where has your latest adventure taken you?
